Crown Prince Akishino Proclamation

First in line to the throne known for scientific curiosity

Chronology of major events related to Crown Prince Akishino

- May 7, 2019 — Crown Prince Naruhito becomes emperor, leading to Prince Akihito being enthroned, Prince Akishino becoming first in line for the throne.
- Nov. 8, 2020 — Crown Prince Akishino is declared first in line during a ceremony called Kokyo no Gi.

The following is a timeline of Crown Prince Akishino’s life so far and associated major events.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Date</th>
<th>Event</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Oct. 23, 1951</td>
<td>Prince Akishino is declared first in line during a ceremony called Kokyo no Gi.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Oct. 23, 1951</td>
<td>Prince Akishino becomes first in line to the throne due to his father’s ascension.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Oct. 23, 1951</td>
<td>Prince Akishino becomes crown prince and his son Prince Hisahito second in line for the throne.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

The imperial family is pictured at the Imperial Palace on Dec. 3, 2018.

Crown Prince Naruhito becomes emperor, passing throne to his son Akishino.

Prince Akishino is known for his outspokenness and sense of humor. During the same news conference, the prince commented on the ceremony and Daijosai, the first annual religious event, which he suggested should be abolished as unnecessary.

The prince also said he was aware of the public’s concerns about the state financing Daijosai, the religious event, from the viewpoint of separation of religion and state. He suggested using the imperial family’s private funds for the ritual instead.

Prince Akishino also said he saw differences between the enthronement ceremony and Daijosai, the first annual religious event, performed by the emperor in November that year.

The ceremony and Daijosai were successful. He also said he was aware of the public’s concerns about the state financing Daijosai, the religious event, from the viewpoint of separation of religion and state. He suggested using the imperial family’s private funds for the ritual instead.

Prince Akishino also said he was aware of the public’s concerns about the state financing Daijosai, the religious event, from the viewpoint of separation of religion and state. He suggested using the imperial family’s private funds for the ritual instead.

Prince Akishino also said he was aware of the public’s concerns about the state financing Daijosai, the religious event, from the viewpoint of separation of religion and state. He suggested using the imperial family’s private funds for the ritual instead.

Prince Akishino also said he was aware of the public’s concerns about the state financing Daijosai, the religious event, from the viewpoint of separation of religion and state. He suggested using the imperial family’s private funds for the ritual instead.

Prince Akishino also said he was aware of the public’s concerns about the state financing Daijosai, the religious event, from the viewpoint of separation of religion and state. He suggested using the imperial family’s private funds for the ritual instead.

Prince Akishino also said he was aware of the public’s concerns about the state financing Daijosai, the religious event, from the viewpoint of separation of religion and state. He suggested using the imperial family’s private funds for the ritual instead.

Prince Akishino also said he was aware of the public’s concerns about the state financing Daijosai, the religious event, from the viewpoint of separation of religion and state. He suggested using the imperial family’s private funds for the ritual instead.

Prince Akishino also said he was aware of the public’s concerns about the state financing Daijosai, the religious event, from the viewpoint of separation of religion and state. He suggested using the imperial family’s private funds for the ritual instead.

Prince Akishino also said he was aware of the public’s concerns about the state financing Daijosai, the religious event, from the viewpoint of separation of religion and state. He suggested using the imperial family’s private funds for the ritual instead.

Prince Akishino also said he was aware of the public’s concerns about the state financing Daijosai, the religious event, from the viewpoint of separation of religion and state. He suggested using the imperial family’s private funds for the ritual instead.

Prince Akishino also said he was aware of the public’s concerns about the state financing Daijosai, the religious event, from the viewpoint of separation of religion and state. He suggested using the imperial family’s private funds for the ritual instead.

Prince Akishino also said he was aware of the public’s concerns about the state financing Daijosai, the religious event, from the viewpoint of separation of religion and state. He suggested using the imperial family’s private funds for the ritual instead.

Prince Akishino also said he was aware of the public’s concerns about the state financing Daijosai, the religious event, from the viewpoint of separation of religion and state. He suggested using the imperial family’s private funds for the ritual instead.

Prince Akishino also said he was aware of the public’s concerns about the state financing Daijosai, the religious event, from the viewpoint of separation of religion and state. He suggested using the imperial family’s private funds for the ritual instead.

Prince Akishino also said he was aware of the public’s concerns about the state financing Daijosai, the religious event, from the viewpoint of separation of religion and state. He suggested using the imperial family’s private funds for the ritual instead.

Prince Akishino also said he was aware of the public’s concerns about the state financing Daijosai, the religious event, from the viewpoint of separation of religion and state. He suggested using the imperial family’s private funds for the ritual instead.

Prince Akishino also said he was aware of the public’s concerns about the state financing Daijosai, the religious event, from the viewpoint of separation of religion and state. He suggested using the imperial family’s private funds for the ritual instead.

Prince Akishino also said he was aware of the public’s concerns about the state financing Daijosai, the religious event, from the viewpoint of separation of religion and state. He suggested using the imperial family’s private funds for the ritual instead.

Prince Akishino also said he was aware of the public’s concerns about the state financing Daijosai, the religious event, from the viewpoint of separation of religion and state. He suggested using the imperial family’s private funds for the ritual instead.

Prince Akishino also said he was aware of the public’s concerns about the state financing Daijosai, the religious event, from the viewpoint of separation of religion and state. He suggested using the imperial family’s private funds for the ritual instead.

Prince Akishino also said he was aware of the public’s concerns about the state financing Daijosai, the religious event, from the viewpoint of separation of religion and state. He suggested using the imperial family’s private funds for the ritual instead.

Prince Akishino also said he was aware of the public’s concerns about the state financing Daijosai, the religious event, from the viewpoint of separation of religion and state. He suggested using the imperial family’s private funds for the ritual instead.

Prince Akishino also said he was aware of the public’s concerns about the state financing Daijosai, the religious event, from the viewpoint of separation of religion and state. He suggested using the imperial family’s private funds for the ritual instead.

Prince Akishino also said he was aware of the public’s concerns about the state financing Daijosai, the religious event, from the viewpoint of separation of religion and state. He suggested using the imperial family’s private funds for the ritual instead.

Prince Akishino also said he was aware of the public’s concerns about the state financing Daijosai, the religious event, from the viewpoint of separation of religion and state. He suggested using the imperial family’s private funds for the ritual instead.

Prince Akishino also said he was aware of the public’s concerns about the state financing Daijosai, the religious event, from the viewpoint of separation of religion and state. He suggested using the imperial family’s private funds for the ritual instead.

Prince Akishino also said he was aware of the public’s concerns about the state financing Daijosai, the religious event, from the viewpoint of separation of religion and state. He suggested using the imperial family’s private funds for the ritual instead.

Prince Akishino also said he was aware of the public’s concerns about the state financing Daijosai, the religious event, from the viewpoint of separation of religion and state. He suggested using the imperial family’s private funds for the ritual instead.

Prince Akishino also said he was aware of the public’s concerns about the state financing Daijosai, the religious event, from the viewpoint of separation of religion and state. He suggested using the imperial family’s private funds for the ritual instead.

Prince Akishino also said he was aware of the public’s concerns about the state financing Daijosai, the religious event, from the viewpoint of separation of religion and state. He suggested using the imperial family’s private funds for the ritual instead.

Prince Akishino also said he was aware of the public’s concerns about the state financing Daijosai, the religious event, from the viewpoint of separation of religion and state. He suggested using the imperial family’s private funds for the ritual instead.

Prince Akishino also said he was aware of the public’s concerns about the state financing Daijosai, the religious event, from the viewpoint of separation of religion and state. He suggested using the imperial family’s private funds for the ritual instead.

Prince Akishino also said he was aware of the public’s concerns about the state financing Daijosai, the religious event, from the viewpoint of separation of religion and state. He suggested using the imperial family’s private funds for the ritual instead.

Prince Akishino also said he was aware of the public’s concerns about the state financing Daijosai, the religious event, from the viewpoint of separation of religion and state. He suggested using the imperial family’s private funds for the ritual instead.

Prince Akishino also said he was aware of the public’s concerns about the state financing Daijosai, the religious event, from the viewpoint of separation of religion and state. He suggested using the imperial family’s private funds for the ritual instead.

Prince Akishino also said he was aware of the public’s concerns about the state financing Daijosai, the religious event, from the viewpoint of separation of religion and state. He suggested using the imperial family’s private funds for the ritual instead.

Prince Akishino also said he was aware of the public’s concerns about the state financing Daijosai, the religious event, from the viewpoint of separation of religion and state. He suggested using the imperial family’s private funds for the ritual instead.